

STOP LIES ABOUT CLIMATE CHANGE

THE FINAL CONFERENCE IN MARSEILLE

We are happy to say that the final conference in Marseille was a success!

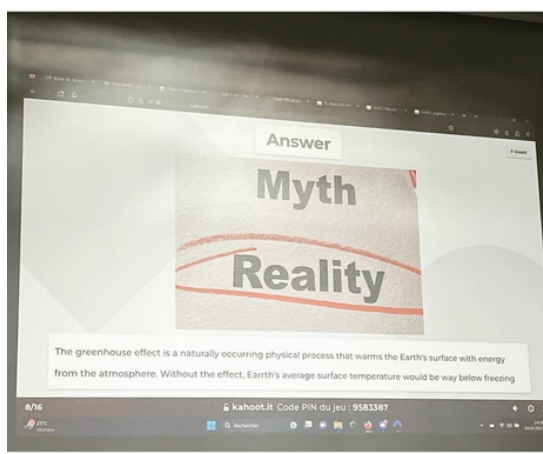

The implementation guide was presented as well as the SLACC methodology through interactive activities.

We talked about the myths and how to debunk fake news.

ABOUT SLACC

SLACC is a project co-funded by the European Commission under the Erasmus+ programme, arising from the need to debunk the myths surrounding climate change.

... AND NOW?

The project is over but all the materials are available on the project website:

slacc-project.eu

You will find:

The Transnational report

An overview of the overall state of climate awareness and climate education in the partner countries.

The fact-checking list

A list of useful links to help you, and young people to debunk fake news.

The SLACC Online platform

An online platform containing multimedia educational content, quizzes and puzzles useful for debunking fake news on climate change.

The SLACC learning app

A learning app with activities to raise young people's awareness of environmental issues. Users can check their knowledge, behaviour and attitude to see where they stand in terms of climate friendly practices. They can also earn a digital badge to recognise their learning achievements.

A compilation of the main climate myths

The SLACC Compilation of climate consists of 33 of the most common climate myths, along with the real explanations that debunk them, accompanied by scientific facts and useful links where the correct information can be found. The myths are categorised into 6 groups according to the main theme/message of the misconception.
